English Abstract

Multidimensional solar system, seven dimensions, mind quality, biofield of man, use of archetype, symbols, christian chakra system, transmutation of metals, transmutation of biofield, spiritual science, scouting, SkAutRing, past lives, reincarnation, genesis of diseases, mind training, wisdom, understanding of religions, string theory, chaos theory.

This work is a second volume of the book „Why the weather has gone crazy“. Both books give new revolutionary view to span science, religion and culture and introduce a scientific explanation of some odd world events. The study continues in the description of the multidimensional Universe based on the report of Baroness Adelpa von Vay (1840-1925). The study gives a few historical social examples of how the resonance effect works and gives physical and mathematical reasons for these catastrophic weather effects. It relates to the string theory in theoretical physics and the chaos theory in mathematics. Small changes in magnetic field of hearts of many people gives enormous changes to e.g. weather disasters according a tuning in a resonant vibration of the adequate dimension. A macro wormhole intervenes a penetration of information field to produce a specific reaction of weather effect or a specific kind of a disaster.

Seven dimensions and sub dimensions are related to an inner energetic system of a man, too. A micro wormhole enables penetration a similar information field to transmit a specific trouble or disease.

The dimension description gives much more detailed accurate information than the Indian chakra system.

In the book there is description of many ways how the biofield of man can be transformed from usual, messy state to a radiant, golden state. A rising biofield is called skAuting (Au from twilight, Aurora, Éos).

Historical examples show that the basic additive is required for transmutation of silver, lead, iron into gold as the most determining factor. The additive is a strong, cleaned, spiritual biofield. The beamy, golden state of biofield can transform things, events and environment, too.

From layout of dimensions we can classify many psychological and social conclusions. The study emphasizes an important task of spiritual science, which ought to be included into each religion to help their mutual understanding. The Law of reincarnation and periodic phenomena in history are important parts of the spiritual science. These give a possibility to prevent and predict disasters waiting to happen to in years 2060 and 2420.
